5. LEVERAGE

Leverage obtainable in CFDs trading means that a small deposit or down payment can lead to large losses as well as gains. It also means that a relatively small movement in the markets can result to a proportionately larger movement in the value of your investment and this can work against you as well as for you. CFD Transactions have an inherent risk and you should be aware of what the implications of this are.

Leverage restrictions may apply on certain products or jurisdictions as it is imposed by the relevant industry practices or regulatory requirements accordingly. In addition, it should be noted that the Company will continuously monitor the Leverage applied to Clients' positions and reserves the right to amend the Account's Leverage depending on the Clients' trade volume and trading patterns.

The Client thus accepts, acknowledges and understands that the automatic reduction of Leverage in her Account could result in the Account Equity falling below the updated Margin requirements, which could result in a Margin Call or Stop Out. The Client is therefore strongly advised to maintain appropriate amount of Margin in his Account(s) at all times in the event of an automatic reduction of the Account's Leverage.

The Company may also add to or change its Leverage Limitations at any time without prior notice to be given to Clients.

The Company reserves its right to limit the leverage size offered and/or increase Margin requirements before macroeconomic events and/or news that could significantly impact financial instrument prices.

6. MARGIN TRADING

CFDs are margin products and the transactions related to them will be done on Margin. This means that the Client must supply a specified initial Margin, on agreement, of the overall Contract value.

If the Account Equity falls below the Margin requirement, the Trading Terminal will trigger an order to close all open positions. When positions have been over-leveraged or trading losses are incurred to the point that insufficient Equity exists to maintain the current open positions, a Margin Call will result, and open positions will need to be liquidated.

The Margin Call process is entirely electronic and there is no discretion applied from the Company as to the order in which open trades will be closed.

It is strongly advised that Clients maintain the appropriate amount of Margin in their Accounts at all times. Margin requirements may vary based on Account size, simultaneous open positions, trading style, trading terminal, market conditions and the discretion of the Company.

The Company may / might / shall / will adjust Margin requirements when reasonably deems it necessary or market desirable. This may occur in response to, or in anticipation of, the following factors:

- i. Changes in the market related to your margined transactions or in the broader financial markets;

- ii. Upcoming economic or market news that may negatively impact any margined positions;
- iii. A change in the Clients trading pattern with the Company or an Affiliate necessary for managing risks associated with the clients' transactions, determined as at the Company's discretion;
- iv. The Client's exposure to the Company or an Affiliate becoming concentrated in a specific currency pair or underlying instrument.
- v. All of the above are not exclusive and not limited to the prescribed factors as the company may at any given time proceed at its own discretion by implementing corrective measures as such.

It is the Company's absolute discretion at any given moment, whether to raise the Stop Out level or change the Margin Requirement of a Trading Account, without prior notice and may forcibly close any Client's open positions or Stop Out their positions of any Client or stop out the whole trading account.

The Client thus accepts, acknowledges and understands that:

- i. The Company does not check whether the Transactions of this nature are appropriate to his financial situation;
- ii. Before deciding to trade on Margin he should carefully consider his investment objectives, level of experience and risk appetite;
- iii. The Company sets freely the amount of Margin, the assets that may be used as collateral and
- iv. the extent of any collateral such assets may provide;
- v. All the Client's assets are therefore blocked and pledged in this connection;
- vi. The Company may also change its rates of initial Margin and/or notional trading requirements at any time without prior notice, which may result in a change to the Margin the Client is required to maintain;
- vii. Taking into consideration the low Margin normally demanded for these Transactions, price variations in the underlying asset may result in major losses, which could significantly exceed the investment and Margin deposit committed by the Client;
- viii. The Client may be required to provide a Margin at very short notice to avoid the risk of having his positions closed and realizing a total loss;
- ix. If the Client fails to comply with a request for additional funds within the time prescribed, the position(s) may be liquidated at a loss and the Client will be liable for any resulting decision;
- x. In certain cases, price changes may be so drastic that the Client's positions may be closed without any period allowed for him to restore his Margin;
- xi. The Company provides the Client with online access to enable the Client to monitor his Margin requirement at all times;
- xii. FXPRIMUS is not responsible to notify the Client when there is a Margin Call on his Account;
- xiii. The Margin Calls are made by the Company directly through the online Trading Platform only and the Client has the possibility to see on his Account the existing assets and Margins.
- xiv. During the time period from 23:50 to 01:00 server time, increased spreads and decreased liquidity can take place due to daily bank rollover. The above time may differ for certain instruments. In case of inadequate liquidity/spreads during bank rollover, widened spreads and excessive slippage may occur. Also, fully hedged accounts might also experience stop-outs due to an increase in spreads, which leads equity to go below zero and, hence, trigger a stop-out.
- xv. Trading will cease between 23:58 and 00:05 server time, in order to avoid huge spikes in spreads and/or stop out.

7. RISK WARNING

The Client unreservedly accepts, acknowledges and understands that CFDs trading:

- i. is highly speculative;
- ii. carry a high level of financial risk, as they are subject to excessive price fluctuations which may cause substantial losses;
- iii. the losses may include all of the Client's investment and also any additional commissions and other expenses;
- iv. is only suitable for persons who are able to cope with the associated risks by bearing the financial losses; and
- v. the Company does not guarantee the capital of the Client's Account or its value at any time or any money invested in any Financial Instrument.
- vi. Trading CFDs is subject to a contingent liability, so the Client should be aware of its implications, particularly the Margin Requirement.
- vii. Trading on an electronic Trading Terminal carries significant risk.

When trading in CFDs, the Client is trading on the outcome of the price of an Underlying Asset and that trading does not occur on a regulated market but over-the-counter (OTC). The Client accepts that the Company is the only execution venue, which is a non-regulated market.

A high degree of risk is involved in trading CFDs. As a result of the gearing or leverage that CFDs often offer, a small down payment or deposit can result in large losses as well as gains. Even a small movement can lead to a larger change in the value of the Client's investment, and this can work against him as well as for him.

Since virtual currencies are traded on various exchanges worldwide (non-centralized), and since we derive our pricing from certain exchanges, our pricing might be significantly different than prices from other exchanges. You should understand the above, and maintain your account balance accordingly, knowing that our prices can be different from prices observed elsewhere.

The Company shall not be responsible for any loss arising from any investment based on any recommendation, forecast or other information provided. Any opinions, news, research, analyses, prices, or other information contained on this Website are provided as general market commentary, and do not constitute investment advice. The Company will not accept liability for any loss or damage, including without limitation to, any loss or profit, which may arise directly or indirectly from use of or reliance on such information.

The contents of any report provided should not be construed as an expressed or implied promise, as a guarantee or implication that Clients will profit from the strategies herein, or as a guarantee that losses in connection therewith can, or will be limited.

8. CLIENT'S ACCOUNT / KYC

The Client shall open an Account with the Company to be able to trade in CFDs offered by the Company.

The Client does not intend to use her Account for payment of transactions to third parties.

The Client understands that no physical delivery of a CFD's underlying asset that he has traded through his Account shall occur. All CFD contracts can only be settled in cash. The prices of these instruments are derived from the underlying assets or currency pairs related to these CFDs, but in no way you are acquiring any right for delivery of the underlying asset/currency. Moreover, engaging in trading CFDs with underlying assets is a virtual currency pair, and due to high volatile nature of these pairs, you might be exposed to higher risks than trading the assets themselves or trading other CFDs with other underlying assets.

In order to open an Account, a client needs to fill out the FXPRIMUS online application form, which can be found on the Company's website. At the end of this form, the following documents must be uploaded:

The Client has 21 calendar days to provide the required documents (referred in paragraph 8.4). The Client will not be able to enter into any transaction of trading nature, and his trading account(s) will be placed in a read-only mode until his KYC documentation is provided to the Company and his trading account is approved.

FXPRIMUS offers its Clients "negative balance protection". This means that traders cannot lose more than the overall size of their investment. In this respect, the Company will bear the costs associated with settling the negative Account balances to NIL.

treat these different Accounts as a single unit. Among other rights that the Company has in the way of handling these Accounts, is the transferring of funds between Accounts to cover possible negative balances, of any of these Accounts, without this affecting in any way the right of the Company to terminate the Account or close all client's open positions.

Any funds received in a currency for which the client does not hold a sub-Account shall be converted by the Company into the client's Account Base Currency. The conversion will be made at the exchange rate prevailing on the day and at the time when the relevant funds are at the disposal of the company's back-office department. Upon request, the client may open a sub-Account in any other of the Base Currencies offered by the Company.

Further details of how we process personal data are specified in our Privacy Policy available on our website.

In accordance with the regulatory requirements of the Anti-Money Laundering and Counter-Terrorism Financing Act No. 13 of 2014, the Company requires the client to provide full and updated information about his/her Source of Funds/ Source of Wealth along with supporting documentation that will identify source of funds deposited with the Company (it can be in a form of a tax declaration, employment agreement, proof of sales of valuable goods, investments, inheritance or any other form of document that can justify the source of the deposited funds). Failure to provide the requested documentation will result in limiting access to the account.

Clients may deposit funds and engage in trading activities without completing the Know Your Customer (KYC) verification process, up to a cumulative deposit limit of USD 2,000.

This limit applies only to deposits, allowing clients to trade freely. However, should a client wish to withdraw funds at any point, the full KYC verification process will be required and enforced.

Once the USD 2,000 deposit limit is reached, the client must complete the full KYC process to continue trading, making additional deposits, or initiating withdrawals.

14. COPY TRADING

SECTION A (COPY TRADING TERMS)

The Company offers copy trading services to its clients. It is though understood by the client that these services are offered through and via the Trading Platform, are facilitated by external third-party providers and not by FXPrimus.

The Company enables you to access copy trading Services through its Trading Platform. By using this feature, you can subscribe and replicate the trading strategies and portfolios of other traders as displayed on the copy trading platform.

Copy trading allows you to mirror the trades executed by other clients. By activating the subscription of a strategy provider, you authorize the copy Trading Platform to automatically replicate these trades in your account without the need for prior consultation, consent, or approval.

Before using the copy trading feature, clients should carefully consider all relevant aspects and factors, including but not limited to, the risks associated with the copied account and its investment strategies.

Prior to engaging in copy trading, it is the client's responsibility to assess whether this service is suitable for their investment objectives and risk tolerance.

The Company does not offer investment advice, nor does it provide personalized recommendations or evaluations regarding the merits of any investments, including those made through copy trading or other services.

The Company assumes no liability or responsibility for any technical issues that may arise during the copy trading process, including but not limited to any profits or losses incurred through the use of this service.

Clients are solely responsible for conducting their own due diligence before engaging in copy trading and acknowledge that any resulting losses are their sole responsibility.

Clients remain fully accountable for their own trading decisions, including the choice of which traders to activate a subscription, and the company will not be held responsible for any losses that may result from such decisions.

Clients must actively monitor and manage their own trades and/or copied trades while utilizing the copy trading services. The Company will not be liable for any losses that may arise from the client's decisions, actions, or inactions.

When opting to copy a trader, strategy, or portfolio, clients understand that copy trading involves high risk and that they may incur significant losses exceeding the funds allocated to copy trades.

Clients should be aware of the risks associated with copy trading, including automated trading execution. This means trades may be opened and closed in the client's account without manual intervention unless the client manages and closes copy trades independently.

The Company advises clients to be cautious when selecting traders to copy, as copy Trading is speculative and losses may occur. Clients who modify or close copied orders manually may experience different results from the original trader. Additionally, trades copied at different times will reflect current market prices, which may differ from the original trade's price. Factors such as account balance, trade size, settings, spread differences, interest, leverage and fees can all affect outcomes, leading to potential variances in performance.

The Company cannot guarantee the performance of any particular investment, account, portfolio, or strategy. The Company does not guarantee that clients will achieve profits or losses similar to those shown by traders they are copying.

The Company is not liable for any damages, losses, costs, claims, or expenses (including loss of profits or indirect or consequential losses) that may arise due to errors in pricing or the copy trading process.

Clients acknowledge and agree that the copy trading functionality applies to the "Close by" or "Partial Close" features of trades or positions. Clients are fully responsible for monitoring and managing their own trades and/or copied trades while using the Company's services. Followers are solely responsible for monitoring their accounts and should be aware of changes in their selected strategy providers. Any positions opened before the closure of a strategy provider account will remain under the oversight of the follower unless closed manually. The Company is not liable for any financial impact on follower accounts due to such closures.

From time to time, the Company may copy trades from test accounts of the Company or third-party providers for the purpose of product evaluation and testing. In such cases, strategy provider accounts will not be entitled to any premium for copied trades. The Company reserves the right to disclose relevant information to the strategy provider as deemed necessary.

The strategy provider and the follower acknowledge and agree that they are subject to limitations depending on their region.

SECTION D (TECHNOLOGY RISKS)

Clients engaging in copy trading should be aware of the inherent technology risks associated with this service. These risks include, but are not limited to:

- i. Latency Issues: Time delays in signal transmission can occur, which may cause discrepancies between the trading actions of the strategy provider account and those replicated in the follower's account.
- ii. Execution Errors: Due to system errors or network interruptions, trades may be executed at prices different from those seen in the signal provider account, or may fail to execute entirely.
- iii. Platform Downtime: Scheduled maintenance or unexpected technical issues with the trading platform may prevent trades from being executed, leading to missed opportunities or the inability to close out positions.

15. SYNTHETIC INDICES

FXPrimus introduces Synthetic Indices as part of its product offering to create a dynamic and engaging trading environment. However, given the high-risk nature of these instruments, clients are strongly encouraged to fully understand the associated risks before trading.

Product Offering

Synthetic Indices are specialized financial instruments available as Contracts for Difference (CFDs) on FXPrimus' Trading Terminal (MT5). These instruments simulate volatile market conditions, offering diverse trading opportunities. Unlike traditional market-based CFDs, Synthetic Indices are designed as market simulation instruments and should not be equated with real market CFDs.

Account Types and Instrument Availability

The availability of Synthetic Indices is limited to accounts registered under Primus Markets INTL Limited. The range of specific instruments offered may vary over time due to factors such as market conditions, regulatory changes, or updates to Primus Markets INTL Limited product offerings. Primus Markets INTL Limited retains the sole discretion to modify or discontinue the availability of any Synthetic Index at any time, without prior notice.

Volatility and Risk Disclosure

Synthetic Indices are inherently volatile, as their design relies on secure random number generators to simulate price movements. This ensures constant activity and unpredictability, resulting in significant price fluctuations. Trading these instruments carries a high level of risk, including the potential for substantial financial losses. Clients are advised to carefully assess their risk tolerance, financial situation, and trading strategies before engaging in Synthetic Index trading.

The Company shall not incur any liability by refusing to carry out orders given by a person whose identity has not in its opinion been sufficiently verified.

It is understood that, regarding individual transactions, depending on the type of Client Account held by each Client, the Company will either execute Orders as a counterparty in the particular transaction, making the Company the execution venue, or it will transmit the Orders for execution to a third party, known as Straight Through Processing (STP). In the latter case, the Company will not act as a counterparty in the transaction, and the execution venue will be the third party.

The Client shall be responsible for all orders and for the accuracy of all information sent via Internet following the use of the Client's name, his password or any other personal identification method set up to identify the Client, regardless of who the actual user is. Orders received by the Company in any means other than through the Trading Platform, will be transmitted by the Company to the Trading Platform and processed in the same way as though it was received through the Trading Platform.

Any order sent by the Client via the Trading Terminal shall only be considered as having been received, and shall not constitute a valid instruction and/or a Contract between the Company and the Client, until the instruction has been registered as executed by the Company and confirmed to the Client by means of a Transaction confirmation.

The Client needs to be aware that the Company will refuse to accept or it may cancel any orders placed and/or executed via the Trading Terminal without any notice if it comes to its attention that the logic behind those orders is to abuse the whole system (i.e., use of specific expert advisors to generate volume by opening and closing positions at the same price) in order this way to gain unfairly benefits for the Client and which is beyond the traditional scope of fair trading.

The Company provides quotes based on the price of the underlying asset; however, this does not guarantee that the quotes will be within a specific percentage of that asset's price. When the underlying market is closed, the quotes offered by the Company will represent its assessment of the current bid and ask prices for the relevant underlying asset at that time. Therefore, the client consents and acknowledges that he/she will not be able to open new positions on a certain instrument but only to close the existing ones.

The Client understands that reports and confirmations of order executions, cancellations or modifications may be erroneous for various reasons. Such confirmations are also subject to change at the Company's discretion, in which case the Client shall be bound by the actual order execution, so long as it is consistent with the Client's order. In the event that the Company confirms an execution or cancellation in error and the Client unreasonably delays in reporting such an error more than 24 hours, the Company reserves the right to require from the Client to accept the trade, or remove the trade from the Client's Account, in the Company's sole discretion.

Without providing prior notification to the Client, the Company has the right to modify Swaps. The client is responsible for monitoring and staying informed about Swap charges.

Once a month, certain CFD's will expire, meaning that expiration will take place one day prior to the expiration of its underlying futures Contract at our closing bid/ask price. The Underlying Assets available for Swap Free Client Accounts are subject to change at the discretion of the Company.

Types of accounts may not be eligible for Swap Free Client Accounts. The Company reserves the right to amend the account types and/or underlying assets that are eligible for swap-free status at any moment.

During the account opening procedure, clients from Islamic countries will be given precedence for a swap-free account. This is determined based on the identity information provided by the client on the account opening application form.

Clients from non-Islamic nations could, at the company's discretion, be eligible for a Swap Free status Client Account. In this circumstance, the Company retains the right to reassess the Swap-free tiers and the Client's requirements for accessing them. The Client shall not have the ability to reject, alter, or cancel any such automatic assignment; rather, the Company may, in its sole discretion, automatically assign to the Client either a Swap Free Client Account status and/or Swap Free Levels. The Company reserves the right to alter, modify, or terminate the Swap Free Client Account and/or Swap Free Levels at any time and for any reason.

If the customer has a swap-free client account, no swaps or rollover fees will be charged to trading positions overnight.

The Company maintains the right, without incurring any liability or duty, to cancel, alter, or terminate the Swap Free Status of a Client's Account and/or Swap Free Levels at its sole discretion and without prior notice.

Whenever the Company detects abuse, fraud, manipulation, cash-back arbitrage, carry trades, or other forms

- ii. To immediately revoke the Swap-free status from all real trading accounts of the client and charge the relevant swaps; and/or
- iii. To immediately close all trading accounts of the client, nullify all trades executed in those accounts, cancel any profits or losses accrued, and/or change the client's trading conditions or restrict the opening, modification, or closing of trades.

22. CORPORATE EVENTS AND ACTIONS

Corporate Action refers to any occurrence related to the issuer of any relevant Underlying Asset.

- i. Any purchase or cancellation of shares or equities by the issuer.
- ii. Any reduction, subdivision, consolidation, or reclassification of share or equity capital.
- iii. Any distribution of cash or shares, including dividend payments;
- iv. Any rights, script, bonus, capitalization, or other issues or offers of shares/equities of any nature, including warrants, options, or similar instruments granting rights to subscribe for shares/equities.
- v. Any other event that has a diluting or concentrating effect on the market value of the share or equity that is an underlying asset.
- vi. Any merger or restructuring involving the relevant shares or equities.
- vii. a take-over or merger offer;

If an Instrument is affected by a corporate event, the Company will take the necessary steps to adjust your trading account to reflect the impact of the event on your position. This adjustment will ensure that the economic equivalent of the rights and obligations related to your Transaction and/or Contract with the Company is preserved as of the ex-date of the event (i.e., the day the price of the affected instrument will reflect the consequences of the event). According to this sub-clause, the Company will undertake the following actions:

- i. For Pending Orders, Stop Loss Orders, and Take Profit Orders associated with your Orders, the Company strives to maintain, as much as possible, the equivalent of the rights and obligations of your Transaction and/or Contract immediately before a corporate event occurs;
- ii. A corporate event, such as a reverse stock split, may cause your share ownership to fall below the minimum allowed by our systems. These positions will be rounded down to the nearest permitted size. It is likely that the Company will take different actions if you owned the underlying Instrument; however, the Company will strive to preserve economic equivalence wherever possible.
- iii. Modify the size, value, or number of orders as necessary to maintain the economic equivalent of your open positions as much as possible.

Corporate events shall include:

- i. Distribution of additional shares, other share capital, warrants, or rights granting dividends by the issuer to shareholders of the Underlying Instrument can result in a dilutive effect on market value.
- ii. Stock splits and reverse stock splits result in changes to both the number of shares owned and the share price. A stock split is a corporate event that multiplies the number of existing shares by a certain ratio. For example, in a 1:2 split, every existing share converts into two shares. In this case, shareholders will see their shares double in number, but since the company's market capitalization remains unchanged, the stock price will be halved. This ensures economic equivalence. It's important to note that after such an event, your positions may be consolidated into a single entry on your trading terminal, which will reflect the effects of the corporate action on all your holdings.

- iii. In cases where an underlying instrument grants dividends, such as equity indices or stocks, a cash adjustment will be made equivalent to what is paid to clients holding open positions in the underlying instrument.
- iv. Delisting/voiding a tradable instrument that will cause positions to be closed; Th Company reserves the right, at its sole discretion, to remove or seize financial instruments offered for trading whenever the issuing corporation files for bankruptcy. This applies even if the corporation does not undergo liquidation. The mere act of filing for bankruptcy is sufficient grounds for the Company to proceed with the immediate delisting of the relevant financial instrument. This measure aims to protect both the Company and its clients, as it may result in the closing of positions.
- v. Any other event similar to the aforementioned events that may affect the market value of the Instrument.
